MEDIA RELEASE

Tasmania's Home Building Industry in 2017 and Beyond

Geordan Murray, HIA Senior Economist will be in Tasmania on 8th June 2017 to discuss the Outlook for Tasmania's Residential Building Industry. He will be presenting at a breakfast to be held from 7-8.45 am at the Best Western Hobart, 156 Bathurst Street.

The residential building industry in Tasmania had a tough run during 2016, however leading indicators throughout the early part of 2017 show some signs of improvement. While the state is starting from a low base, we are beginning to see the Tasmanian economy creating jobs and the rate of population growth has reached a five year high.

Geordan will discuss the latest economic developments and what it means for residential building activity in Tasmania for the year ahead, including a discussion of the recently announced state budget.

A media station will be set up at the venue and made available after the presentation for a personal interview with Geordan Murray.
